Comments

The erosion of the banks along Newsome Creek over the past two freshet seasons (2017 & 2018) has led to a real danger of residents along Caen Road of losing their homes and/or outbuildings not to mention the potential for loss of life depending on the nature of the calamity which occurs. This is part of the greater concern regarding the over-all issue of the need for a major review of how to handle the many potential costly damages he can result all along the creek from the mountains to the south all the way to the mouth of the creek at Shuswap Lake. This matter will not resolve itself. It must be address by local, provincial, and federal authorities across several ministries. It is complex and extensive and requires all levels of government to pay attention to it and to coordinate an action plan that mitigates against possible very costly outcomes in the future. However, the immediate concern is people are in danger of losing their homes, outbuildings and even their lives.
